How You Are Billed

In most cases, you will receive a bill directly from your insurance carrier for the following insurance policies:

- General Liability
- Errors & Omissions
- Workers' Comp
- Umbrella
- Fidelity Bond

The carrier will typically send an invoice four to six weeks after your coverage starts.

What is Garage Liability & Garagekeepers Insurance?

- You run a service station and a customer has to leave their vehicle in your bay overnight while waiting for parts. A fire ensues and destroys the station including your customers' car. This is not covered under General Liability – it would be covered under Garagekeepers.
- You run a mobile auto repair business that fixes windshields and the vehicle becomes damaged. In this case, you don't even "own" a garage, however, you would need a Garagekeepers policy the vehicle is in your care, custody, and control.

Garage Liability covers the liability for the premises and operations as well as products and completed operations involved with running a garage business. To further explain, completed operations coverage applies in the event of a claim that results from property damage to an auto as a result of work the insured performed on the auto.

The second piece to the Garage policy is the Garagekeepers form. The Garagekeepers policy covers the insured's liability for loss to a covered auto left in the insured's care while the insured is attending, servicing, repairing, parking or storing the auto in the garage operation. Some common Garagekeepers claim types are: Accident involving collision, fire, explosion, theft, or vandalism.

A common issue with this coverage is being "under-insured" in the event of a catastrophic situation. A few things to consider when determining the proper limit: How many vehicles could you be servicing or storing at one time? What are the maximum values of these vehicles?
